

Provided exclusively to WSA Members, May 15, 2022

Over the course of the last several weeks, there has been what might be called a ‘brouhaha’ over a (mostly) coast vendor, Northeast Landscaping & Tree Services, Inc. (NELTS). During that time I have been contacted by several contractors concerned about the company’s ethics and business practices.

Just yesterday a WSA member contacted me very upset about how NELTS personnel insisted they drastically increase their scope of work for no additional pay per sweep. NELTS has reportedly also found nitpicky ways to deny several of their invoices. Plus, to date they have received no payment from the firm.

In addition, an anonymous contractor recently sent a message to a number of the companies that currently use NELTS as a third-party vendor. The contents of that message is here as a PDF; in addition, the screenshots that are referenced as having been taken off social media sites are archived here.

The info on NELTS is being provided as an FYI only; however, if you have additional information to share please let me know. Although I looked, I cannot find a NELTS website. I did contact NELTS CEO, Antonio Portunato, on the company’s LinkedIn site several weeks ago and asked him to contact me for an interview. Although he messaged me back that he would, I have not heard from Mr. Portunato since.

Provided to WSA Members May 15, 2022

Over the course of the last several weeks, there has been what might be called a ‘brouhaha’ over a (mostly) coast vendor, Northeast Landscaping & Tree Services, Inc. (NELTS). During that time I have been contacted by several contractors concerned about the company’s ethics and business practices.

Just yesterday a WSA member contacted me very upset about how NELTS personnel insisted they drastically increase their scope of work for no additional pay per sweep. NELTS has reportedly also found nitpicky ways to deny several of their invoices. Plus, to date they have received no payment from the firm.

In addition, an anonymous contractor recently sent a message to a number of the companies that currently use NELTS as a third-party vendor. The contents of that message is here as a PDF; in addition, the screenshots that are referenced as having been taken off social media sites are archived here.

The info on NELTS is being provided as an FYI only; however, if you have additional information to share please let me know. Although I looked, I cannot find a NELTS website. I did contact NELTS CEO, Antonio Portunato, on the company’s LinkedIn site several weeks ago and asked him to contact me for an interview. Although he messaged me back that he would, I have not heard from Mr. Portunato since.